Job Description

Full-Stack Developer (app / web).*

Corporation Pop is an award-winning digital agency with a rich background in the design and development of apps, websites and immersive technology.

We've been making our clients stand out from the crowd for over thirty years and we do that by pushing the boundaries of creativity through the innovative use of technology.

Work and services:

Our portfolio ranges from websites for some of the UK's biggest music festivals such as Creamfields, Download, and Reading & Leeds, to one of our longest standing clients, a small, independent arts organisation of just six artists in south Yorkshire, whose website we've managed for over twenty years.

We've built digital health apps for start-up companies, including specialist support for healthcare professionals and their patients, whilst also delivering major pieces of software for some of NHS England's biggest trusts.

We've also produced immersive games, educational AR and VR experiences for school kids, and an on-the-go video editing app in recent times – just look at our website, we're really proud of our work!

The Pop mindset:

Corporation Pop believes in doing a job well, to the very highest standard, and our Clutch client reviews are testament to that. We're not interested in a quick buck and firmly believe the work we do is a reflection on our people and our organisation.

We're a small, close-knit team of experts and innovators. We thrive on personal interaction giving each other the space to explore, whilst expanding our collective skill set. A corporate hamster wheel, we are not.

We're a sociable team with company days out, after work get togethers and the best roof terrace in Manchester for when the sun shows its face.

The right candidate:

We're looking for a Full-Stack Developer with commercial experience. Someone who's keen to get stuck into lots of different projects with a brilliant and creative team of devs, designers, artists and project managers.

To fit in well at Corporation Pop, you must be full of gusto and brimming with ideas. You should be a self-starter who's happy to work as part of a collective.

You must know your onions when it comes to the software development life-cycle and proper coding practices. We mostly work on codebases across JavaScript / Typescript (Node.js, React, React Native) and PHP.

We use AWS, so experience or certification in their services would be a bonus. It would be great if you have experience in collaborative working methods such as pair programming, code reviews and TDD.

Don't worry if you don't quite have everything, it's more important you fit into the team well. We can teach skills, we can't teach attitude.

Benefits:

- Friendly, supportive and highly experienced team.
- Relaxed working studio environment for team collaboration.
- Hybrid work approach – we'd like to see you in the studio three times a week.
- Up to 30 days holiday – dependent on length of service – plus bank holidays.
- 35 hour working week. We believe in a healthy life / work balance and we don't encourage overtime.
- Investment in training and development with time allocated to experimental 'Pop Labs' projects.
- Ride-to-work, profit-share and referral bonus schemes.

Apply:

If you like what we're about, and think you fit the bill, send your CV to us at jobs@corporationpop.co.uk Include a note telling us about you and why you're right for the job, and give us access to your GitHub account so we can see examples of code you're proud of.

We look forward to hearing from you and hopefully, welcoming you to our team!
